DEALS WITH LIVE THROBBING ISSUES

Does "The Ragged Messenger," Which Appears at the Grand This Evening.

With a minister of the gospel as its leading character, "The Ragged Messenger" was bound to be compared with that other play, "The Christian" whose central figure also is a clergyman. The comparison has always been in favor of the new play. Both the clergy and the laity have endorsed it unreservedly. The church approves it because it teaches.

Creston Clarke in "The Ragged Messenger," at Grand tonight.

es attractively but none the less forcibly that righteousness will always triumph over sin. The public applauds it because it deals with live, throbbing issues that the entire civilized world is at present trying to solve. Such a play interests and engages the thinkers by the scope and verity of its ethics, while it entertains and thrills the playgoers by the novelty and vigor of its story. It is unquestionably the play of the year. Creston Clarke will present "The Ragged Messenger" at the Grand tonight.

YORK STATE FOLKS AGAIN PLEASES

Sweet and Beautiful Story of Rural Life is Once More Enacted Before Clarksburg Audience.

Again another large audience witnessed that sweet and lovely play of rural life, "York State Folks," which has pleased Clarksburg theatre-goers for the past six years, at the Grand opera house Monday night and every one who saw it enjoyed it again.

Practically the same excellent cast that presented the play before produced it last night. In fact in the whole six year the play has been coming here there have been but five changes from the original cast. James Lackaye, as Simon Peter Martin again essayed that role and the character of Simon Peter Martin will never be presented in a better nor stronger manner than by him. All the other members of the cast were very good in their part. The play was staged with the same careful regard to naturalness and realism that has heretofore characterized it and the pretty story was acted out in the same manner.

BIG LOAD OF TURKEYS.
